VQ Launch Six New Contemporary Colours

The World's Most Colourful Audio Brand Launch Six New Colours in the Retro Mini Range all with an eye on the Pantone Colour of the Year 2018

Retro Mini

January 4th 2018 – Award winning British audio brand VQ are pleased to announce an expansion to the colour range of their Retro Mini DAB/DAB+ Digital Radio & Bluetooth speaker to include six new contemporary shades all of which make ideal hue companions for the Pantone Colour of the Year 2018 – Ultra Violet.

Since launching in 2014, Retro Mini has been one of the nations' most popular Digital Radios, the combination of vintage good looks, with an eclectic colour palette that now numbers 16 shades, and comprehensive functionality with digital & FM Radio alongside Bluetooth streaming all at an affordable price makes this radio a winner.

The new colours cover all bases, with the Pantone of the Year 2018 having sparked diverging design trends. For some the bold ultra violet colour should be paired with more neutral tones, where the two grey options provide perfect balance. For those seeking a more high voltage décor the electric colours will deliver a zesty look. The happy middle ground is found with bold colour blocking with the navy and mint offering strong but not overpowering splashes of colour.

Retro Mini is not just flexible when it comes to colour options, the choice of what you listen to and how you listen to it is equally broad with DAB/DAB+ Digital Radio supplemented by traditional FM with easy tuning and 60 available presets. If you prefer to tap into your own playlists, podcasts or even audiobooks the Bluetooth connection means you can stream from your phone/tablet – and best of all with the USB charge port you can power up your device at the same time.

Best of all, and as with all VQ products, Retro Mini is designed and engineered right here in the UK, with a three year warranty and best in class customer support.
